VILLAGE CANDIDATES FILE PETITIONS; ELECTION APRIL 15

Joseph C. James for Police
Magistrate—Rosing for Treasurer

Six candidates for village office have filed their petitions with Village Clerk Harry A. Isaacs, it was announced yesterday following the last day for filing such petitions at midnight Tuesday, 35 days before the annual election that will be held this year on April 15.

Isaacs for Clerk

Heading the list with his own petition is Harry A. Isaacs, village clerk here for many years and who is a candidate for re-election.

Candidates for trustees are: H. J. Vos, E. O. Hawkins and Nason Sibley. Vos and Hawkins are for re-election, and Sibley's name will be placed on the ballot as a candidate to succeed R. L. Murrie, who declined to become a candidate for another term.

William A. Rosing for treasurer, and Joseph C. James for police magistrate, completes the list of candidates on the People's ticket, to which there will be no opposition, it is reported.

In Illinois treasurers do not serve successive terms in office, therefore the present treasurer, J. E. Brook, could not be a candidate for re-election. Mr. James is a candidate to complete the unexpired term of the late Harold Gelstrup as police magistrate.

Predicts Tours to Moon Soon

Robert Hutchins Goddard, physicist at Clark University, Worcester, Mass., claims that he has discovered a principle of propulsion by means of a liquid explosive that will soon enable human beings to undertake trips as far away from the earth as the moon. A round trip to the satellite, predicts Professor Goddard, should take about six days. He is shown with a new appliance adapted to watching a rocket traveling through space.

EX-SERVICE MEN PLAN ORGANIZATION MEETING APRIL 15

First Attempt to Organize County Fails—Meeting Adjourns

After arguing at some length over politics, a group of about forty ex-service men assembled at the Waukegan armory Monday night for the purpose of organizing a county league, adjourned the meeting until April 15, too late to make recommendations in the coming primary. The meeting, said to have been called through the efforts of Charles Noll, was presided over by John L. Horan, commander of the Antioch post, as temporary chairman.

When political arguments got warm, over the appearance of rival factions in the sheriff race, Commander B. L. Henderson of the Waukegan post got the meeting adjourned until April 15.

Spanish War veterans were also represented at the meeting by Chas. O. Armes and E. V. Orvis. The veterans hope to get out a larger crowd at their next meeting which is to be a real organization of ex-service men for political purposes.

Prin. W. C. Petty, who is being sought to speak on many different occasions throughout the county, went to Lake Forest Thursday to talk to members of the Kiwanis club.

MRS. MARY MANN IS INVITED TO JOIN GOLD STAR MOTHERS

Is One of Six Thousand To Visit Soldiers' Graves in France

WILL SAIL ON MAY 21

Signifying her desire to take advantage of the opportunity offered to all Gold Star mothers throughout the land, Mrs. Mary Mann, the only woman in Antioch who bears that distinction, received an official invitation from the Quartermaster General's office, Washington, D. C. Tuesday to join the party of six thousand Gold Star mothers who will sail for France on May 21.

All Expenses Paid by Government

Eight hundred dollars will be the average cost per individual, but no pilgrim will handle any of her expense money, except between her home and New York, coming and going. From New York to France and back again, she won't have to spend a nickel; everything will be done for her and everything arranged for her.

Even such details as the morale of the various parties have been considered by the efficient Quartermaster General's office, in formulating plans for the trip. An army officer will be in charge of each group on each boat—not very large in any case, as all must travel first class under the law confirming the expenditure.

It will be his duty to see that those who are making the journey get acquainted so that they will not have time to reflect on the purpose of their trip.

In order that none of the elderly women will not be taxed beyond their strength, it was thought feasible to give them a chance to rest in a New York hotel if necessary. In Paris they will have two days to convalesce from the boat trip before starting to see the graves of their dead; and on the return trip they will have five days' rest before sailing for home.

To Spend Seven Days at Cemeteries

Seven days, according to the itinerary, will be spent at the various cemeteries in France where World War soldiers have been buried. Each bus party will be routed to the largest town nearest the cemetery it has come to visit and from that town as headquarters, these distinguished mothers will be taken to the graves of their sons. An army officer, carefully instructed for the work, will be in charge of each bus.

Since the purpose of the trip is to make a pilgrimage to the graves of the war dead, there will be no sightseeing opportunities offered. Arrangements have been made in Paris so that the ministrations of Catholic priests, Jewish rabbis, and Protestant ministers will be available to those pilgrims who desire them.

Mrs. Mann will sail on the Washington.

CAMP LAKE COTTAGE IS SCENE OF GANG TORTURE THREATS

Band of Extortionists Believed Broken When Ex-wife Gives Tip

ASK JURY INDICTMENTS

The woman chief of an alleged kidnap torture band which is believed to have extorted half a million dollars in ransom last year, was taken into custody of Cook county authorities Sunday night. The chief witness against her and her six men accomplices is Theodore Kopeland, wealthy vice-president of the Chicago National Life Insurance Co. Two years ago Kopeland was in Waukegan on business and complained about this same woman's greedy extravagance. She was his wife then.

Kopeland's former wife whom he divorced in March, 1928, was seized with another woman and several men when Kopeland informed police headquarters of the fact that he had been kidnapped, threatened with a red-hot poker, and forced to turn over $4,000 of what was to be a $25,000 ransom in order to secure his release. She was living with a gangster as "Mrs. Myrtle Resnick" in Waukegan in 1928.

When Kopeland was in Waukegan early in the spring of 1928 he reported that he was having trouble with his wife. She was demanding more money than he could make, he declared, and he was growing desperate. He appeared to be sleepy, and admitted that he had been up all night trailing his wife. A divorce, he said was the only way out. A month later it was granted.

Police quickly recognized "Mrs. Myrtle Gorman Resnick" as the woman who appeared after Chicago's Valentine day massacre and claimed the $100,000 found in the safety deposit box of Pete Guseberg, one of the slain gangsters. She said that she was his wife. Kopeland said that she had been Mrs. Myrtle Christine Larson Thorin before she married him. There are more names by this time.

Retreats Through County

The route followed by the kidnappers, after they had held up Kopeland on North Clark street, Chicago, led through Libertyville and Antioch.

At Antioch a second car joined the one in which Kopeland was being carried, and the expedition sped northward to Camp Lake, Wisconsin.

In a cottage there, Kopeland was stripped and threatened with red-hot irons, he told police, and finally released

the next day after he had secured

$4,000 ransom money and written a check for an additional $1,000.

The terrorists were arrested when they called at the Michigan avenue shop of Kopeland's sister to collect another portion of the ransom. They were trapped by detectives. Police credit them with from ten to twenty other extortion plots in the past year, and believe that they have secured nearly half a million dollars by their operations. The death penalty will be demanded, according to Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller.

Ruth Hanna McCormick Senatorial Aspirant, Is Guest of Antioch

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, congresswoman-at-large, and candidate for federal senate, was the guest of Lake county last Friday, filling three speaking engagements, the first at Antioch at one o'clock when she was luncheon guest of the Episcopal Guild at the Parish hall.

Mrs. McCormick gave her views on the world court and farm relief to large audiences at Antioch, Highland Park and at the night meeting in Waukegan.

Lake County Federation Of Women's Clubs To Meet in Libertyville

An unusually interesting meeting of the Lake County Federation of Women's clubs will be held at Libertyville at the Episcopal Parish House on Brainerd ave., Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. A short business meeting, which will include the reports of officers and chairmen of committees, and the election of new officers will be followed by a program that promises to be exceptionally attractive. Among the speakers will be Judge Perry L. Persons of the county court. The meeting will be followed by a pleasant social hour.

Noted Orchestra Will Be Featured At Palace Opening

George Goforth and his Gold Band orchestra, one of the leading dance bands of the country, has been engaged for the opening of the Antioch Palace for dancing Saturday night, Manager Richard Mack announced this week. Goforth and his band have been touring the East and are now returning. Mr. Mack feels rather fortunate in securing a band of this class for the opening of the Palace ball room.

TRAGEDY AT DEEP LAKE REMAINS UNSOLVED TODAY

Hopes of Apprehending Slayer of Girl Are Waning

INQUIRY STILL BEING MADE

With hopes for ascertaining the identity of the murdered girl and the apprehension of the slayer waning, the tragedy that occurred at the Deep Lake cottage Friday night still remains a mystery today, according to latest reports from officials who are making the investigation.

Clews Disclosed

Through the co-operative efforts of Dr. John L. Taylor, county coroner, and Major Calvin Goddard, director of the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern University, however, a series of clews, used in the partial identification of the body, have been brought to light within the last few days. Examination of the body shows her to have been about 5 feet 5 inches in height, about 135 pounds in weight, and between 20 and 30 years old. A scorched hair removed from the ashes was that of a blond woman who wore her hair long, and a fragment of scorched cloth was revealed as having been blue taffeta and probably from a dress worn by the victim.

Two Pellets Found in Torso

An x-ray examination made by A. J. Link, Waukegan expert, of a portion of a blackened bone found in the ruins by Major Goddard, Sunday showed it to be a cranial section of the human head. The brain apparently had been intact, proving that if she had been struck over the head the blow had a stunning rather than a fatal force. Two bits of metal, one the shape of a buck shot and the other anchor shaped lodged in the burned flesh of the torso was also disclosed by the examination, as the result of which States' Attorney A. V. Smith was brought into the investigation. In order that they might be used in the prosecution of the case should the murderer be apprehended, the state's attorney asked Coroner Taylor to preserve the two pellets.

Slain Friday

Indicating that the death of the girl had occurred but a few hours before the body was found in the ruins of the cottage, there was a strip of unburned flesh along the back where the body had lain, probably on the floor of the cottage. This strip of flesh was found to have been clear and not mottled as it would have been had the death occurred several hours before. In addition to that evidence, the condition of the food in the stomach led authorities to believe that it had been there but a short time.

Antioch Fire Department Called

The hacked and mutilated bones of the murder victim were found smoking in the ashes of the cottage by members of the Antioch Fire Department, who were called there about 11

COUNTY BOARD APPROVES $1,250,000 ROAD BOND ISSUE

County to Ballot on Propos- al April 29—To Pave 37 Miles

BOND ISSUE TO BE RETIRED FROM GAS TAX

Resolutions providing for the construction of 12 connecting links of main highways and the building of 57 miles of paving were passed yesterday morning by the Lake county board of supervisors.

Approval of a bond issue for $1,250,000 will be asked of voters at a special election on April 29. The bond issue is to be retired from the gasoline tax. The county's income from this source is approximately $150,000 annually. This is a minimum figure, according to members of the county board.

They base their predictions on the first return from the state. This covered a five month period, August, September, October, November and December, and returned $71,591.18 to the county for road uses. The other seven months, it was pointed out, would bring the annual return to or above $150,000.

In addition to this sum the county has $52,000 to its credit from the defunct gasoline tax that became effective during the Gov. Len Small administration.

Mrs. Charles Runyard, Trevor, spent Thursday in the home of her sister, Mrs. Will Runyard.

THE YOUTH OF YESTERDAY AND TODAY

Grandfather wasn't like a wild kid at eighteen he was allowed to hitch up old dobin for a five mile ride to a neighbor's to spend a couple hours after chores with the pretty daughter dressed in her prettiest gown of calico. And grandmother at sixteen wasn't blamed too severely if she took a deep interest in looking her pretties when she drove off in the surrey with her steady to spend a day at the county fair. We do a great deal of fussing over scant clothes, flesh colored stockings, bobbed hair, and painted cheeks these days, when if we'd calmly make comparison's we'd have to admit the youth of today has improved over the youth of yesterday. Of course we live faster, see more, and have more interests, but after all we usually settle down to the realities of life and prize the things which make for better living. Old folks who profess to see gross wrongs in the youth of today simply haven't the honesty to admit the truth.

MOTIVES OF WORK

The amount of human energy in the world is truly immense, but there is also a most lamentable waste of effort. Some of this waste may be avoidable, but more is willful. It would certainly be interesting to know for what motives men do their best work. It has been said that men do not work for the necessities of life. Food and clothes and dwelling must be secured and worked for, but the prospect of getting them does not give a man zest and zeal and satisfaction. He will work with all these when his extra labor provides him with little luxuries, the possibility of indulging in a hobby, a victrola or radio back garden, a motor cycle or car, a victrola or radio outfit, or a special vacation trip. Men want something beyond their reasonable standard of living; they want the little embellishments and decorations of life which allow them to give expression to their individualities. Nearly all men have the desire to get away from the grind of mere routine; they wish to give vent to their more idealistic tendencies; they strive to have at least some little realm where they are free and can feel like human beings. There is no doubt that in former centuries before modern capitalism began to exercise its sway, men had more of this liberty of movement, of individual activity, and as a result, their work was better. Shall we ever get back to these more satisfying and more human conditions?

RECENTLY DISCOVERED CANCER TREATMENT

Much has been said during the last month or two relative to the cancer treatment which has been recently discovered by two San Francisco physicians. The experiment which they performed consisted of taking an extract from the cortex of the adrenal gland of sheep and injecting it into the bodies of men and women who are cancer victims. As a result these physicians have seen these cancers slough off, almost miraculously; they have seen that happen time and time again. Neither of them know the exact manner in which this extract accomplishes its work, but it is not necessary that they know. They work in mystery, and that's enough.

Much remains to be learned. Is the extract a preventive? Is it a cure? Do the cancers that are sloughed off in this way return eventually? Do they start growing again within a few months? Is the treatment effective for a second growth cancer?

If underactivity of the cortex is responsible for the wild growth of malign cancer cells, can this extract prepared by those western doctors bring back normal activity to the cortex or is something destroyed forever, as in severe cases of diabetes? Will fairly frequent injections of the extract be necessary to keep cancerous growth from the human system? These are some of the questions which must be answered in order that we may know just how complete the conquest of cancer may become.

You should have seen the episode on Victoria street Saturday afternoon. Let's see there was Bobby, Billy, Marjorie, May, Junior, Jeanette, and Brother... and maybe some others. They had the cutest little imitation airplane made out of wooden boxes. Yes, it even had wings; but of all the kids who were there, Brother was having the best time, because it was he who would fit into the "cabin". They sure did give him one swift ride up and down the street and maybe up and down the street, and maybe you think he didn't hang on tight.

There are two distinct kinds of subscribers to the Antioch News and no doubt to every newspaper in existence. There is the subscriber who comes in and says, "Got your expiration notice; I'm glad you sent it; I want to pay for what I get and would never have thought about it if you hadn't reminded me of it. My wife has been at me for two weeks to attend to this—fraid we'd be cut off and miss a copy. Let me know next year when my time is out and I'll be in."

Then there is the kind who comes in and says, "I got your dunnin' letter, but I sez if he wants to cut me off, I'll read somethin' else—I don't need his paper. Here's the money I owe; now don't ever send me a sample copy"—and out he goes forever and we're mighty glad, because he doesn't belong to "our family", composed as it is, of self-respecting and substantial citizens.

Robins have come from the South; good looking salesmen have made their bow; kids are roller skating; and Antioch shacks are busy eliminating "spare tires" from their list of prospects—all these are signs of spring, but there is still another which is much more obvious than any of these—old Eagle Eye heard little chickens peepin' in the post office Tuesday noon.

YES, IT'S THAT TIME OF YEAR

"My fellow citizens: Steen years ago your humble servant was honored by being elected to the office of umph-blah umph-blah. As an evidence of how well I have kept the faith I point with a pardonable degree of pride to the following undisputed facts: Babies are still being born in this community and our population has increased amazingly; the sovereign voters are living in better houses than they did when I first took office; there are ten thousand more automobiles in this county than when I was first elected. I confess that I am not directly responsible for the increased population, the better living conditions, or the increased prosperity, but I have graciously permitted these things to transpire. And I promise faithfully that if I am returned to office the sun will continue to rise in the east; that the law of gravitation will remain operative; and that the Democratic Party in Lake county won't amount to a dam for many, many years to come. I have invited into this country (ah—for political purposes) some very prominent personages to whom I have cited the highlights of my administration, but I have guarded from them most zealously my sins of omission. These prominent personages have been kind enough to say I am "it," and I am paying out of my pocket to have these bouquets dashed up to the sovereign voters through the medium of the press. I ask you, my dear ballot-caster, to read, believe, and vote for me. I realize there are men better qualified for the office than I, but remember, I have had this office for 'steen years; I got it when qualifications meant considerably less than they do today; I have been carried along on the wave of progress and deserve credit for being able to keep aboard the band-wagon, notwithstanding that my qualifications are less than those of many of the people whom I supervise. I thank you."

Days With These Dishes

Just a little extra thought at this Lenten season will enable you to serve a succession of interesting meals that the entire family will welcome.

Since most meats are highly flavorful, it is important to remember that foods which take their place must be attractively seasoned as well as substantial.

Baked beans, eggs, and a variety of vegetables offer a basis for almost innumerable dishes that will make the family forget the ordinary delights of a meat course.

Below are a number of recipes that should prove especially welcome at this season:

New England Baked Beans
1 medium can Oven Cooked Kidney Beans, 1/2 cup soft crumbs, 1 cup grated cheese, 1 medium size onion, chopped fine, 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 egg.

Mash beans or put through food chopper, and mix with other ingredients. Bake in a greased baking dish in moderate oven until firm and nicely brown. Serve with tomato sauce made as follows:

1 tablespoon butter, 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 cup Tomato Ketchup.

Melt butter and add flour and milk slowly. Cook until thickened, and add ketchup slowly.

Baked Beans in Green Pepper Cases
Wash green peppers, cut in half lengthwise and remove the seeds. Fill with oven baked beans and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Place in a deep baking dish, add 1/2 cup cold water, and bake in a moderate oven until peppers are tender.

Scalloped Eggs and Olives
Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, add 4 tablespoons flour, and stir until well blended. Add 1/2 cup milk and stir until thick. Season with salt, pepper and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Add 4 hard cooked eggs, cut in slices, and 1/2 cup sliced Spanish Olives. Pour into buttered baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs, and brown in hot oven.

Mock Chicken à King
In a skillet melt 3 tablespoons butter and brown slightly 1 can mushy or 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms. Add 3 tablespoons flour and stir until well blended. Then add 2 cups rich milk, and cook until thickened. Season with salt, pepper, and 1/2 teaspoon Worcester sauce. Add 3 hard cooked sliced eggs, 1 cup cooked celery, 1/2 cup sliced, stuffed Spanish Olives and 1/2 cup grated American grated cheese. Heat thoroughly and serve in patty shells or on buttered toast. Garnish with slices of Stuffed Spanish Olives.

Kidney Bean Salad
2 cups Oven Baked Kidney Beans, 2 tablespoons India Relish, 1 cup celery, cut in pieces, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Pot Oven Baked Beans
In a strainer and pour boiling water over them. Cool and mix with celery, India Relish, and salt. Mix well with French dressing, and let stand in ice box until chilled. Arrange in nests of lettuce leaves, and serve with Mayonnaise salad dressing.

Peanut Butter Cutlets
1 cup Peanut Butter, 1 cup hot milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, pepper, slices of bread.

Mix Peanut Butter with hot milk and seasoning, blending them together thoroughly. Dip slices of bread in the Peanut Butter mixture and fry in a skillet with 2 tablespoons hot fat. Garnish with pickles and olives. This dish offers both adequate protein and iron and therefore is an especially good meat substitute.

Jolly St. Patrick's Menus
That Will Delight
You

St. Patrick's Day is a time when nearly everyone entertains. Whether you plan a substantial supper for an evening party, or only a light bridge luncheon in the afternoon, you will want to carry out a green color scheme in your menu. It is interesting to find what a wide variety of "green" foods can be served—Cream of Pea Soup, parsley potatoes, Jellied Cucumber Relish, stuffed green pepper salad, and even Pistachio ice cream. If you serve sandwiches or mintes, they should be cut in the shape of shamrocks, and of course, you will decorate the table with shamrocks (very attractive ones can be cut from green paper).

Home Brew Recipe

Chase wild bullfrogs for three miles and gather up the hops. To them add ten gallons of tan bark to give it a body, half pint of shellac to make it smooth, one bar of soap to make it foam, and four door knobs to hold it down after you drink it. Boil for thirty-six hours, then strain through an I. W. W.'s sock to keep it from working. Add one grasshopper to each pint to give it a kick. Pour a little into the kitchen sink. If it takes the enamel off, it is ready for bottling. —North American Almanac.

Local Man Relates Experiences On Isle of Man; Came to Antioch in 1896William Kelly Returns to Island After 20 Years of Absence; Finds Many Changes*HAS LUCRATIVE BUSINESS; LIKED BY CHILDREN

In the calm placidity and routine of life it is vastly amusing and in fact fascinating to listen to a man like William Kelly recount in his leisurely, but interesting, fashion some of the innumerable experiences he has had not only in this country, but also on the Isle of Man, where he was born 65 years ago. Mr. Kelly has a perspective of his own, which gives one a significant glimpse beneath the surfaces of complex human nature and this absorbing world of things and events.

Decides to Come to America

After spending 30 years on the Isle of Man, which, as you know, is one of the British Isles, Mr. Kelly came to the grave and portentous conclusion that the cost of his maintenance was becoming an appalling drain upon his diminishing resources, due to the fact that the income from the blacksmith's trade, in which he was engaged, was netting him only the meager sum of $4.50 per week. This decision brew strategy—he must go in search of more lucrative surroundings. While pondering over the solution of the problem, the word "America" became tattooed on his brain. The more he thought of it, the more eager he became to ferret out the meaning of that mysterious word. When asked how it happened that he finally decided to leave his home and venture out across the great Atlantic, he threw a hasty glance around the room and replied affably, "I had always heard it was easier to make money in America." The rumors he had heard impelled him to hope in that wonderful country beyond the ocean. He looked forward to his sailing with sternly leashed eagerness.

Goes to Windy City

Landing in New York with his wife and two children, he immediately started for Chicago where two brothers and a sister lived. He spent a year in the Windy City, during which time he was employed in the freight yards for the paltry salary of $9 a week. He then came to Antioch, where he has lived ever since.

Business Is Lucrative

Letting nothing barge in between him and his work, Mr. Kelly spent the first 25 years of his life here playing the role of a blacksmith, after which he became engaged in the occupation of sharpening lawn mowers. Proving that he must be adept in his trade and that business for him even at the present time is not at all feeble, Mr. Kelly has in his shop on Lake street over 300 lawn mowers, which are all sharpened and ready to be trucked to Chicago and elsewhere. For the last 6 years, he admits, he has sharpened all of the lawn mowers which are used by the Standard Oil company in the Illinois metropolis. When he first came to Antioch Mr. Kelly recollects that there were only 5 or 6 machines in the village.

Helps Children

With a benevolent attitude, Mr. Kelly spends a least a few minutes each day making some Antioch youngster bubbly jubilant. How does he do it? Ask any kid on the street and he will reply, "He fixes our skates, our wagons, and our toys". When questioned about this commendable activity, he hunched up his shoulders, twinkled his eyes, yawned prodigiously, jerked his head in affirmation, and said with a slow smile, "Yes, the kids bring their skates in here and I fix 'em for them."

Returns for Visit; Finds Changes

Keenly desiring to renew old acquaintances, Mr. Kelly returned to the Isle of Man for a visit two years ago. When asked to comment on the changes that had taken place there since his last visit prior to the War, a curious sort of forgetfulness of the past came over him, but this was not a true amnesia, however, because in a few seconds he remarked, "There, as in the United States, immense changes have taken place since the War". While on the Isle he met and talked with many of his old classmates of 50 years ago!

Famous Summer Resort

The Isle of Man, as most of you know, is one of the most famous summer resorts in the world. It consists of a long oval mass of rock, probably largely of volcanic origin, similar to Cumberland and Wales, in contour and geologic condition. It is 29 miles long and 12 or 13 miles wide at its widest, so that no part of it is more than a half dozen miles from the sea, a fact which accounts for its equable climate. It is very seldom very hot or very cold there, according to Mr. Kelly. The conformation is highly diversified, a fact which explains the great variety of beauty found there.

Trip There Fascinating

Judging from Mr. Kelly's description of it, a trip to the Isle of Man must be irresistibly charming. Every summer, swift and palatial steamers bring from 25 to 50,000 tourists there daily. On arrival at any of the excellent harbors, Douglas, Ramsey,

Wins Big Ski JumpC. L. KUTIL OFFERS TIMELY GARDEN AND FARM SUGGESTIONS*Opinions on Feeding, Housing Chickens, Grape Pruning

By C. L. KUTIL

The annual epidemic of seed catalogs is on, and the usual high temperatures which accompany this first deluge of spring fever are raging with fervent heat. An unusual symptom is an outburst of enthusiasm such as is never displayed at any other time of the year. This enthusiasm, if properly guided through the course of the disease, nearly always results in a complete recovery. It is with a great deal of hope that each week I will be of some service in guiding the readers of this column in their farm and garden problems.

eggs from 6 to 10 per cent. Vita and Iowa 103, White Oats—Silvermine and Wisconsin No. 1, Barley—Wisconsin Pedigree No. 45 and Wisconsin Pedigree No. 37 (smooth awned).

Smooth Awned Barley

By the way, the Wisconsin Pedigree No. 37 Smooth Awned barley has outyielded all other smooth awned varieties. At the University of Illinois it yielded 49 bushels per acre or 5 bushels more than its nearest rival. This barley can be handled in comfort without sacrificing high yields.

Prune Grapes Now

Grape vines should be pruned now before the sap runs. Leave about 4 canes to a plant. Clip the ends of these canes leaving 8 to 10 buds on them. If there are any spurs or side branches, clip the ends on them also, leaving about two buds. After March 15, it may be too late to prune grape vines. I learned to prune grapes from an Italian grower. "The main thing to remember", he used to say, "is not to be afraid to cut away a lot of wood". Wherever I have done any pruning the past few years, people usually objected to the severe pruning, but the average yields in mine D and E are responsible. Forkful of alfalfa hay every day or two should supply enough of Vitamin E.

Poultry Specialist Visits Antioch

Lyle W. Funk was greeting friends here Wednesday. Mr. Funk will be remembered as the man, who, while in the employ of the state, conducted a poultry school at the local high school five years ago. He is now in the employ of the F. D. Rogers Co., of Elgin, in the capacity of poultry specialist.

thorough pruning.

Warm Floors for Brooder House
Thousands of chicks will die this year around Antioch because the brooder houses are not warm enough. Chickens are readily susceptible to pneumonia when chilled on cold or drafty floors. Floors should be double with building paper in between. The walls for the first 18 inches up should be tight to prevent draft. Be sure the door is fitted tightly.

ARE you as careful about feeding your power machines as you are about feeding your stock?

How about your car and tractor? Red Crown Gasoline, the kind I sell, is made for automobile and tractor engines. It is fine gasoline. My Company has been making Red Crown for forty years, keeping it up to the minute all the time. It is clean and sweet—and you may be sure it will not eat the cylinder walls or the bearings.

If you want a gasoline that knocks out that knock, that makes an old engine run like new, then use Red Crown Ethyl. It costs a few cents more, but those who try it, continue to use it.

Because it is made and sold in such large quantities, it can be, and is, sold for less than it is worth. I believe that the price of Red Crown is as low as you can afford to pay.

I am in business here. My income depends on the goods I sell. I want your business, and I believe I deserve it, because the goods I sell go to you with a double guarantee, mine and that of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The Company has a high standard of service which they insist I give you. This standard I will maintain. I appreciate the business you have given me, but I want more of it. I am here to give you service any time, any where. Will you let me give it?

WILMOT PIRATES TO CLOSE SUCCESSFUL SEASON TONIGHT

University Man Okays High School Class Room Procedure

The Pirates lost the third round in the tournament to the Sixteenth Street Merchants of Racine at Racine Friday night, in the Y. M. C. A. tournament, after having defeated the Jerome Parks of Racine and the Coco Cola team from Kenosha. The final score of the last game was 19-15. The Pirates led at the end of the first quarter in the final game 7-3 and were one point behind at the half, the count being 8-7; at the end of the third quarter the Pirates were again in the lead 14-12; but with only a couple of minutes to go, they trailed 17-15. With less than a minute to play, George Richter was fouled and intentionally missed the free throw in order to give his team mates a chance to bat the ball in the basket and tie the score. The ball was balanced on the basket rim three times and would not fall in, to tie the score, and a long pass to the other end of the floor, resulting in a basket, gave the game to the Racine Merchants, with a final score of 19-15.

This week's game will end up the season for the Pirates. The last at-home-game will be played Tuesday evening with Waterford at Wilmot. Wednesday evening the Pirates traveled to Chicago to play the preliminary game for the Bruins vs. Brooklyns at the Chicago Stadium, against the South Wilmington Coal Miners' team from Wilmington, Ill. ERNE KRATOCHVIL AGAIN IN WINDUP ON PALACE CARD

Frank Terry to Battle Racine Flash in Feature Bout

Erne Kratochvil, Racine flash, is again carded in the windup at Dick Macek's amateur boxing show at the Antioch Palace Friday night. Erne's foe will be Frank Terry, a Belle Plaine miller who has plenty of speed and a wallop.

Supporting the windup attraction Promoter Macek has arranged an all-star card of six other bouts featuring Paul Harris, Grayslake, and Paul Liberty, Kenosha, in the semi-windup.

Racine Boy Fast

One of the speediest 105 pounders in the amateur game, J. Kratochvil, appears in the opening preliminary in the ring with J. Sanblago, Waukegan, the latter performing in the local ring for the first time.

Don Merriman, Waukegan, and John Valek, Belle Plaine, will trade punches in the second preliminary, and George Jones of the High Jinx club and B. Camden, Belle Plaine are principals in the third bout.

Howard Craft and Buddy Moore, Belle Plaine, are billed for the fourth scrap. Johnny Hughes, Kenosha, and B. Saltzman, Belle Plaine, are scheduled for the fifth bout at 130 pounds.

Friday's Fight Return

Paul Harris, Grayslake, won three round decision over Billy Bennett, Evanston, in the windup.

Howard Craft, Grayslake, lost a four round decision to Tony Muscarillo, Chicago. Muscarillo, after playing even with Craft the first three rounds, opened up in the fourth and gained the verdict.

Jack Lazar beat Buddy Moore in three rounds.

Chuck Oliva, Chicago lost a three round decision to Charley Hughes, Kenosha.

Joe Kratochvil, Racine, lost to Frank Redding, Kenosha, in the first preliminary. The boys staged three fast rounds.

Jimmy Simmons, Kenosha, was awarded the verdict over Walter Clark, also of Kenosha, in three rounds.

Maleck Kayes Promisco

George Maleck, Antioch, engaging in his first bout here Friday night, rocked Perry Promisco, Chicago, to sleep in the third round. Maleck has a powerful left that Spilled Promisco to the canvas, four times before he would stay put. It was a clean knockout. The local boxer showed much promise in his first fight.

club near Antioch Sunday. No clews were found, however.

It was a sedan of dark blue that Edward Schram, caretaker of the cottages at the Henning Johnson resort, saw speeding along the Deep Lake road a short time before the fire at the cottage was detected.

Keys Furnish Clew

A ring containing seven keys, the first of a series of articles found in the ashes of the cottage, furnished another clew for authorities to work on Monday when E. W. O'Toole, a Chicago advertising man who had lived in the death cottage all last summer and who was its last known tenant, declared that it did not belong to him or any member of his family.

Subtracting zest from the impetus with which authorities have launched the investigation, Coroner Taylor stated Tuesday that he was of the opinion the body was burned to too great an extent to make complete identification possible and it would thereby be impossible for the prosecution to present the corpus delicti necessary to obtain a conviction in a murder case.

the girl might have been the victim of Chicago gangsters. Prompted by this supposition, police are now searching for Louise Rolfe, the attractive blonde sweetheart of "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, and who served as his alibi when he was arrested last fall as a suspect in the Moran gang massacre. Since she is known to have possessed many gangland secrets, it is believed she might have been murdered to prevent their being disclosed. The discovery of the blonde hair in the ruins strengthened this supposition.

Marion Miller, reputed sweetheart of Frank McErlane, held as Chicago's cruelest gangster and who was shot while he lay in bed in a Chicago hospital, recently, may also have been the victim. Affairs growing out of the shooting of McErlane are said to have brought about the assassination of "Dingbat" Oberto, and the Miller woman may have been connected with the warfare.

Receiving Anonymous Tips

As is customary in cases of this kind authorities are receiving innumerable tips and bits of advice in anonymous letters and telephone calls.

Monday morning Sheriff Doolittle went to the Abbott Laboratory in Waukegan to inquire about a girl who was supposed to have left that plant on Friday to visit a friend in another city. She failed to arrive at her destination and her whereabouts were unknown. It has been learned since, however, that she is married and living in a southern city.

Acting on information received in a telephone call in which he was told that two youths were seen to place a bundle in a blue sedan on the night of the murder, the sheriff made a hurried trip to the Cedar Crest Country

LAUNDRY PROJECT SHOWS PROGRESS

Rigid Economy in Purchases Has Been Rule, Foth Says

In response to many inquiries regarding the status of the proposed Chain O' Lakes Laundry and Dry Cleaning company and the progress of the project thus far, Clarence D. Foth, attorney-in-fact, issued the following statement late yesterday.

"The project justifies serious consideration by all who wish to participate in a meritorious necessity which not only will be able to furnish the best of service to those patrons who are located in this region, but will offer steady employment to many people."

"Great economy and good judgment have been exercised in the purchase of property, construction of buildings, the letting of contracts, and the purchase of considerable machinery. A preliminary appraisal by a competent authority in the appraisal field, shows a value in excess of $30,000 for the buildings, and various estimates have been made of the grounds of between $3,500 and $5,000, besides the contracts that are let. Money is in the bank to pay for everything not all ready settled for. More than $2,000 has been saved in the purchase of machinery thus far and we still have money in the bank. Rigid economy with no extravagance has been uppermost in the minds of those we have retained and who have worked directly under my supervision in organizing and establishing this outstanding Chain-O-Lakes institution."

"If the people will just get behind this movement, as may be expected of those desiring improvement in service and conditions, the establishment can be in full operation by April 15, 1930."

"We all ready have over 15 of the agencies established that assures us a constant supply of work. Our modern equipment, wonderful soft water, and a man in charge who has had more than 30 years experience in the power laundry business, give assurance that the institution will provide the very best service, and service is in reality all any utility has to offer. "For thirty days from the beginning of operations the management will have the services of several very competent assistants to aid in the training of all employees so that those patronizing the institution will be assured of beautifully finished work and a glow to garments that only can be procured through the use of the most modern power equipment and the application of soft water."

Charity Begins at Home

The most charitable and philanthropic individual in all the world is the American citizen. Many times each year the cry for aid comes through the ether waves from all four corners of the earth and as soon as these distress signals reach our ears, America responds generously, bountifully. Regardless of when a catastrophe may strike, no matter where starving women and children may be in need; America responds immediately. We succor the needy, we relieve distress, we feed the starving, whenever the need arises, the world over. America is the world's greatest benefactor. May this national characteristic be forever one of the outstanding qualities of the American citizen!

An analysis shows that while we are promoting the welfare of humanity in far lands, often we overlook those in dire distress in our immediate locality. Charity should begin at home. We are foregoing one of life's greatest opportunities if we fail to answer the cries of our needy neighbors. What more worthy charity can be found than to restore the minimum standards of living to every family in our own town.

In the average community, from five to ten per cent of all families are in need of charitable assistance. The chief causes of this poverty are: Unemployment, sickness and family difficulties. Temporary financial assistance, proper care, counsel and advice fulfill the charitable needs of most charity cases.

When we are called upon to contribute our time and money for local charity, let's all respond immediately and gladly. Let's help create a "Community With a Heart" for

The leading cause of poverty—unemployment—may be eliminated, as has been pointed out, by building a bigger and better community. Every member of this community should have the opportunity to earn. Constant employment should be offered to every citizen.

Of next importance in the elimination of poverty, is to keep people employable—that is, physically, mentally and morally fit. Sickness is largely preventable. However, in cases where the community has a standard of health and prevention measures, and charitable assistance is necessary on account of sickness, then trained medical charity is necessary. There is no greater corps of unacknowledged, unselfish, conscientious charity workers than the doctors, dentists, nurses and hospitals in every community.

About one-third of all charity cases are the result of mismanagement of personal and family affairs. These cases can best be handled through the personal contact of church leaders, civic and commercial organizations and the sympathetic understanding of individual citizens and business men.

The best form of charity and social welfare work of which a community can boast lies in simple, friendly, neighborly advice and help; the counsel of the church, the interest of the school, and help on the part of the employer and the merchant—this is a real form of social service.

The Treasure of the Bucoleon

"Could we, perhaps, detain them sufficiently long to permit us to get away?" inquired my uncle.

"With the treasure? Hardly! I say, do you realize the sheer physical job in removing that stuff? Why, there must be tons of it! It would have to be boxed and crated. And where would you take it to? How would you take it anywhere? To arrange for its removal would require—oh, I'd hate to say how long! In the meantime, we might hold Mrs. Hillyer without causing any comment, but Mahkouf is a well-known person. He isn't called the 'Grand Vizier's Jackal' for nothing."

Wasso Mikall appeared in the doorway at the foot of the stairs that led up to the large chamber on the court-yard level. His face was grim and the tone in which he addressed Nikka so savage as to attract the attention of all us. Kara eyed him with approval, and ventured a confirmatory nod.

"He says," Nikka translated, "that the only thing for us to do is to kill Tokalji and the rest of the prisoners, stow their bodies in the drain that I have told him about, and then deny to Mahkouf that there ever was a fight or that there is any treasure here. He insists it was a great mistake for us to take any prisoners, but that we can yet remedy it in time."

"He's dead wrong," said Hugh abruptly. "I think I can use Tokalji to work out of this mess."

"How?" asked Nikka.

"By making it worth his while. He'd do anything for money, wouldn't he?"

"Yes."

"Well, we have the money in limitless quantities. I want to say a word to you lads and Professor King that has been on my chest ever since I saw that treasure vault. I never thought of this before, because I didn't take the story any too seriously. But now it's beyond cavil. My point is this: there's too much wealth down there for any one man. Professor King says there may be $125,000,000. Nobody needs that much just to lead his own life in affluence."

"I'm going to divide it equally between you, Nikka, Jack, Professor King, Wattie and myself, subject to whatever disbursements Nikka thinks Wasso Mikall should have and a price necessary to attach Tokalji's alleged aces to us."

"Your idea of purchasing Tokalji's aces, supposing he can aid us, is a good one," said my uncle. "But I have more money now than I can use. I must absolutely refuse your offer so far as it concerns myself, Hugh."

"Me, too, your tidship," spoke up Watkins. "What would I do with millions or pounds? All the other servants would be jealous of me, and the newspaper gentlemen would be laying their fun with me every day most like. No, no, sir. I'm an old man, and with all due respect, I'm sure I'd much rather stay on with you at Chesby, your tidship, and valet you properly. It ain't so easy to find a good valet nowadays, sir. Really, sir, I'd rather not."

"Well," said Hugh, "we won't fight about that Wattie. If you stay with me you—Why, hang it all, you're one of the best friends I've got! You must stay. But I'm going to insist on splitting with Jack and Nikka. Then Jack can build houses to suit himself, and Nikka can play his fiddle to poor girls and girls."

"I knew you'd make an offer like that, Hugh," said Nikka simply. "It's like you. And don't you worry about Wasso Mikall. I'll take care of him and his tribe with my share. It wouldn't do them any good to make them grossly rich. They'd leave their old ways of life, contract tuberculosis or dissipate themselves to death. Let them be. They live an idyllic life, a life good enough for me, anyway. But I'm not going to protest against the corruption of Tokalji. If you believe you can make anything out of it. What is your idea?"

"Have him in," answered Hugh. "I'll show you."

Wasso Mikall brought in the brigand chief, his broken arm in a sling, a sour glint of hatred in his eye.

"Now," said Hugh, "ask him, Nikka, if he'd like to be so rich he wouldn't need to steal again, except to indulge his sportin' tastes?"

Tokalji evidently considered he was being spoofed, and he drew himself haughtily erect.

"He says any man would answer that one way," replied Nikka. "But that you seek to annoy him."

"Tell him," returned Hugh, "that I'll give him £100,000 Turkish if he'll come over to our side, and back us up against Mahkouf Pasha. Explain to him about Mahkouf Pasha."

The change in Tokalji's manner was ridiculous.

"He says," translated Nikka, "that he will kill the sultan for you for £100,000 Turkish. But he wants to see the money."

"Watty," said Hugh, "go down into the sewer-treasury and collect a sack of jewels—anything will do. Tell Tokalji I'm sending for an earnest of our good faith, Nikka."

Avarice glowed in the brigand's face. Wasso Mikall looked disgusted. He nursed some secret grudge of his own against Tokalji, and had wanted to cut his throat from the minute he discovered the scoundrel was our prisoner. But Hugh's bunch was a good one. None could doubt that, as Tokalji gradually thawed under the influence of his stimulated acquisitive instincts.

And when Wattie tramped in fifteen minutes afterward and plumped a bulging sack into the old thief's lap, a misfortune was wrought. Sweat beaded on his forehead; his hands clutched the lovely stones; his eyes shone; he cracked to himself and crooned like a mother over her baby.

"Tell him they are his, and that we will add gold to them, if he plays fair with us," continued Hugh when he judged he had made his effect. "But he will have to remain our prisoner until we leave."

"He awaits your orders," Nikka translated the reply, as Tokalji reluctantly tore his attention from the treasure on his knees. "Wait a minute." This last as Tokalji burst into a tumult of excited speech. "He says for you not to worry about Mahkouf Pasha. He knows all about the pasha. He, the pasha, has been smuggling arms from Rumilia to Kemal Pasha at Angora, and Tokalji has played a part in the business."

Hugh just grunted, and the rest of us grinned back at him.

"We are indeed fortunate," remarked King.

"Fortunate your eye!" returned Hugh with jubilant disbelief. "I knew such precious scoundrels would sell each other out. Now, Nikka, you tell Tokalji he is to inform Mahkouf Pasha that he regards us as his friends, inasmuch as we relieved him last night from the oppression of a band of thieves. And we'll have Mahkouf in here, and give him an earful. I suppose we'll have to drag in that poor Hillyer woman, too. I hate that. But she'll have to be made to understand her position."

The interview that followed was absurd and sordid. Mahkouf Pasha, after an attempt at hectoring defiance, collapsed completely and begged to be let alone. Nikka, who handled him, squelched him to putty, and told Wasso Mikall to see him to the street.

"And remember," Nikka concluded, "if you dare to breathe a word against us, you Levantine dog, we will show you up for what you are to the Allied High Commissioners, to your master the Grand Vizier and to the Nationalists at Angora. You have played all three of these, one against the others, and all three will be glad to hang you. Go, before I kick you!"

Wasso Mikall positively chuckled as he jerked the ashen-faced mongrel to his feet and steered him up the stairs.

Maudie Hillyer was not so easy. She began by a wailing tirade that degenerated into a fitful harangue. I learned afterward that she had risen in life from a position which had made her engagement for the Gayety theater chorus an epochal event for her. She sent Betty from the room for a few moments, and Hugh gently quieted her.

"See here, Mrs. Hillyer," he said. "We don't enjoy this any more than you do. For what happened to your husband—perhaps anything I say will be in bad taste. But the fact remains that we had nothing against him. It was he who went after us. And I notice that although that demon Latte tortured and attempted to abuse several of us, including a woman, you never raised your hand to restrain him."

"But I'm not appealing to you on grounds of decency, but of self-interest. If nothing comes out about Hillyer's end, you can go home and hold up your head. On the other hand, if you want to air what happened, I shall see to it that the whole story of my uncle's death becomes known. And you think that then you will be received anywhere at home? I leave it to you."

The queer social vanity that was the mainspring of the woman's life responded to the argument. She dried her tears and restrained her tongue; and for a moment I felt sorry for her. But she showed her character at the instant, even as she rose to go.

"It's all very well what you say, Lord Chesby," she whimpered. "But what am I going to do now? Hillyer's dead, Little Depping is loaded with mortgages. His cousin George will inherit what's left of it, anyway. And I—"

She hesitated artfully.

"I am not going to pay you blackmail," returned Hugh coldly, "but you may call or my solicitors this day two months. What we do for you will depend upon your conduct."

And that was the last any of us saw of Maudie Hillyer. But I may as well say here that she did call on Mr. Bellows in London, and that by Hugh's direction he arranged to pay her a small income conditioned on good behavior. Hugh, with his usual generosity, insisted, too, upon making substantial presents—booby prizes, he called them—to our two Russian prisoners. They were not released, however, until we left Constantinople, as their vindictive attitude assured us of their desire to wreck our fortunes, if they could discover an opportunity.

What happened to the strange pair after Wasso Mikall freed them I do not know. But I should hazard a guess that while Mrs. Hillyer will be content to live respectably in a cheap Brighton hotel, eking out her means with the practice of bridge of an uncommonly sharp variety, Serge Vassilievitch and Sandra Vassilievna—whether brother and sister, in truth, I never found out—will flee their way through the smart watering places and resorts of the continent so long as the police permit them at large.

"Are we dejected?" demanded Hugh, as the door closed behind Mrs. Hillyer.

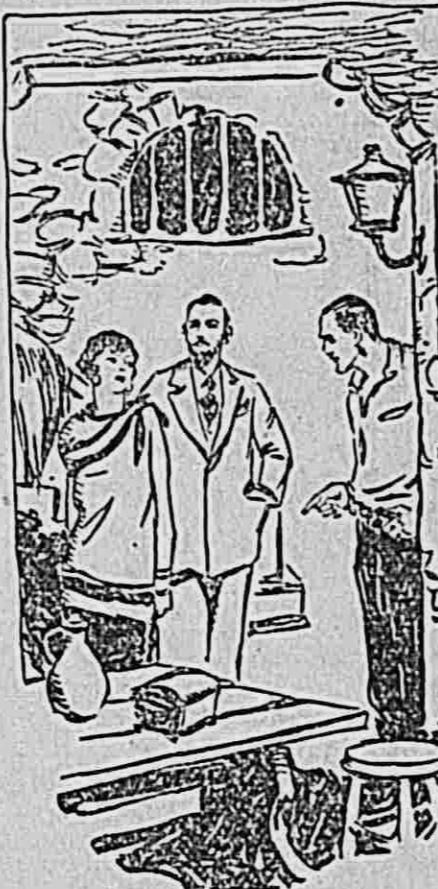

"We are not," returned King. "It is amazing to reflect upon the apparent hopelessness of our position a couple of hours ago, while now we seem to have no reason to anticipate any insurmountable difficulties."

"We'll find a way," Nikka declared. "I feel more hopeful than I did. Hugh has given us a lesson in practical strategy. It was a master stroke to buy in Tokalji. Now we have some time to spare."

"And with submission, sir, Master Nikka," said Watkins, gently closing the door behind him. "Miss Betty is dead asleep on some rugs upstairs. Are you gentlemen forgot it's past eight o'clock? Come, now, a bite of supper, and you'd best sleep a while."

"He's right," assented Hugh. "We're overdoing it. A night's sleep will set us all up."

We slept royally, leaving the guard duty to Wasso Mikall's men; and the next day we awoke with confidence in our united ability to overcome all remaining obstacles. At Nikka's suggestion we called upon Wasso Mikall for his advice. He pondered for five minutes or so then spoke like a judge on the bench.

"A great treasure like this cannot be trusted in many men's hands," he said. "Otherwise I would offer to transport it by mule trains to the dwelling place of my tribe. Jakkai knows how secure that is. But even if we succeeded in carrying it there, what should we do with it? To make use of it, you must carry it to the hands where you live."

"So, friends of my sister's son, I say that you must put the treasure on a boat, and you must go on that boat, yourselves, and you must be sure you can trust the captain."

"But how can we find such a boat and captain?" asked Hugh.

"Leave that to me," answered Wasso Mikall promptly. "I know certain men of my race in this city who can furnish me with information about the vessels that come to the Golden Horn. And in the meantime, you must make boxes to hold the treasure."

We heard no more from him for a week. He went and came, sometimes by day and sometimes by night; and we in the house in Sokati Masyeri, prisoners as well as captors, labored with saw and hatchet, hammer and nails. As fast as we shaped the boxes, we carried them down to the drain and packed them, wrapping gold and gems in whatever fabrics we could find around the house, and in this way we used up all the loose lumber, cloth and bedding in Tokalji's storerooms.

Then, one night as we sat in the atrium, very sore as to hands and fingers from the unaccustomed carpentry, there was a knock on the courtyard door, and Wasso Mikall ushered in a tall, lean man in a blue sea-officer's cap. He left this man in the courtyard, and came down to us.

"I have brought you a sea captain who does not fear to dodge the law," said the old gypsy without preface. "He loves a Circassian girl who lives in a street near the Khan of the Georgians, and I have made it plain to him that if we do business with him the girl stays in my custody for surety of his honesty. He is a Russian, and his ship is his own—or so he says."

"Did you not tell him what we wanted him for?" questioned Hugh.

"Tell him only what you must," counseled Wasso Mikall. "I think I have a hold on this man, but I would not trust him more than I could help."

"Why can't we tell him that we have made a remarkable find of ancient statuary, mosaics and that sort of thing?" I suggested. "He will look us up, and the story will sound credible for King. Well let him know that the government wouldn't like to see such a valuable collection go to foreigners, and so we have to smuggle it."

"That will do," Nikka approved. "And that will explain why we must send the boxes abroad secretly."

We made the deal with the Russian captain that night. He was not a bad chap, but a bit put to it to earn the keep of himself, his crew and his vessel by reason of the anomalous situation in which they found themselves, the Slava still running under the old imperial registry. She was a tidy tramp of 5,000 tons odd, and Captain Malakovitch made no objection to turning over the necessary cabins for our use.

The transfer of the treasure occupied a week, for we could only work at night, carrying the heavy boxes down the drain and utilizing the limited stowage room of the Curlew. We set Watkins aboard the Slava to watch the boxes, and the rest of us either mounted guard on our prisoners or else made more boxes and packed. It was a hectic time. The only real excitement that marked it, however, was a visit we received from two of Tokalji's men from the camp of the tribe in the forest of Belgrade. Kara took care of them, sending them back with imaginary instructions from her father.

The last day, after the treasure boxes, now duly stenciled "Antiques, Statuary, Chgs. Pd., Wth Care," were stowed away in a secret compartment of the Slava's hold, we all found time to go to the British embassy to see Hugh and Betty married. Kara, strangely subdued in a costume furnished by Betty, hung to Nikka's arm and watched the ceremony with amazement.

"Do the Franks have to do all that to be married?" she commented. "I am more than ever glad I am a Tzigan."

"What are you going to do with her, Nikka?" asked Betty. "Send her to school? Or let me look after her? I'd love to."

Nikka laughed.

"You wouldn't very long. No, I'm not going to curb my wild hawk so drastically. She shall taste of civilization sip by sip, until it savors sweetly on her tongue."

"And you?" cried Hugh. "Aren't you coming with us?"

"No, I must tsk her. And in taming her I shall indulge the craving that has grown in me to sample again the joys of the open road that I have not known since I was a lad. We are going to wander, Kara and I. We will go up into the Rhodopes with Wasso Mikall for a while, and then we will take the Tzigan's train through the Balkans and over the Danube and the Carpathians, on, on, wherever we choose."

So, when the Slava steamed out of the Golden Horn that afternoon, Hugh and Betty, Vernon King, Watkins and I waved good-bye to our comrade. Kara and I stood on the pier end as long as we could see them; and after they had dwindled out of sight we turned our gaze on the matchless skyline of Stamboul, with its lofty domes and slender minarets and close-packed buildings tumbling down the hillsides to the great cordon of the old Byzantine sea wall.

And on the very edge of the wall was poised the squat bulk of Tokalji's weird establishment. We could see it clearly, the fine lines of the House of the Married, the plump tip of a cedar waving from its mysterious hidden courtyard, and the L-shaped mass of the bachelor's quarters opposite. They bulked smaller at this distance than when seen from the bobbing cockpit of the Curlew. Already it began to seem difficult to believe that within their walls we had witnessed so much of tragedy and devotion.
